How We Work

Work Values

The Redstone Technical Test Center (RTTC) has a longstanding reputation for employing intelligent, hardworking, creative, and technically competent people. For over 50 years, our workforce has been truly dedicated to meeting each customer's unique needs. The work ethic the RTTC team possesses today is the same ethic that most of the U.S. workforce possessed in 1950. RTTC retained these important values throughout the years because our organization leadership rewarded their retention – enabling us to continue meeting customer needs.

When you contract with RTTC, we deliver results.

- Our personnel will always expend the time and effort needed to provide you the best test and evaluation; our people are serious about their work.
- Our RTTC staff will display the flexibility and creativity needed to respond to your changing needs, priorities, and schedules.
- Our engineers will provide you the technical expertise needed before, during, and after testing; our personnel are subject matter experts in the required technical fields.
- Our people will treat you with the respect that all "customers" should expect – but not all organizations can deliver.
- Our people will conduct your testing with state-of-the-art equipment in state-of-the-art facilities; our personnel are well educated and trained in using high tech tools and equipment.

- RTTC Project Managers will effectively and efficiently plan, conduct, evaluate, and report on your test.
